DECATUR IN CHICAGO.

Nearly 1,000 People Pay the Low
Fare, $4.45. Since Friday night at 12 o'clock nearly 1,000 Decatur people have taken advantage of the one-fare ($4.45) rate to Chicago over the Wabash and Illinois Central roads to help swell the crowd at the World's Fair on Chicago day.

The railroad has been taxed to their utmost to carry the people. Saturday night every Wabash train was crowded to the doors and there were several long sections. Sunday night there were three sections, and Sunday night there was further demand upon the transportation department for coaches.

Two sections of the Chicago train out of Decatur. At Decatur alone the Wabash sold 655 tickets at $4.45 since Friday night, closing this morning. The Illinois Central, 200 to 300. All of the tickets are good until Oct. 15.

The interest at the Free Methodist church is on the increase. Yesterday there was a fair attendance at both the morning and evening services. The pastor's subject for the morning service was "Individual Experience." After the sermon there was one session to the church.

At the evening service the pas- tor used for his text these words, found in Luke 18: 7: "Ought it down. Why cometh it to the ground?" At the close of the sermon six arose for the prayers of the church. The pastor announced that he would begin a series of meetings, assisted by Presiding Elder Kelley, the first Sunday in November.

A raw night's ago John Godetti and wife came near being a mark for a bullet at their home on East Condit street. It was about one o'clock in the morning when the crack of a pistol was heard and a bullet came crashing through a window pane into a wall on the opposite side of the bedroom. The bullet passed over the sleeping couple.

It is believed, however, that the man who held the revolver had shot at a cat that had been making the night hideous.

There is to be insurance inspection
work in Decatur. Ten or fifteen gentlemen representing as many stock insurance companies will arrive to-night or to-morrow, to begin the work of making a thorough inspection of the buildings of the city, with a view of making a new rate. John G. Stauffer is the chairman of the delegation and all reports will be made to him.

Saturday afternoon a company of twenty-three boys and girls gathered in the W. C. T. U. hall and organized a company of the Local Temperance Legion under the direction of Miss Kate Aikin. The company will complete its organization next Saturday and elect officers. Many lines of work will be taken up. All parents are invited to send their boys and girls Saturday at 2 p. m.

Two Middle Division Elevator Com- pany at Fairbury, whose twenty-one elevators throughout the country have been closed for nearly two months, has at last effected a satisfactory settlement with creditors and the concern will once more embark in the grain business. Farmers who had grain stored with the firm at the time have agreed to receive payment for the same in four installments.

In the circuit court R. L. Pettijohn and his wife, whose house was searched for $275, lost by Henry McDermott, began a suit for $200 damages Saturday against Mr. McDermott. It appears that there was no foundation in fact for the suspicious entertainment at the time by Mr. McDermott that the Pettijohns had his missing money secreted in the house.

JUSTICE SHORS was kept busy Satur- day afternoon. Lucretia Mosby was fined $3 and costs for assaulting Josie Dennis, and then Lucretia had a warrant issued for Jones on a charge of disorderly conduct. E. L. Roberts and J. L. Houser, who had had a fight, paid a fine of $3 each, and J. W. Stanley forked over $3 for assaulting a party named Mitchell.

DUNRAVEN'S DOOM.

The Fate of His Venture Gloomily Foreshadowed.

THE DEFEAT OF THE YACHT VALKYRIE

In the First of the Series of Five Races to be Sailed for the America's Cup—The American Defender, as Ever, Victant.

New York, Oct. 8.—The evening sun yesterday shone on a victorious Vigilant and a defeated Valkyrie. Lord Dunraven's racing flag followed that of C. O. Iselin across the finish line, and the name of Herreshoff is still great over the world. The race was the first of the series for the possession of the America's cup, and the hopes of the American yachtsmen, which were so low after the fiasco of Thursday, yesterday soared as high as the American eagle can fly. The doctrine of manifest destiny is suddenly a source of one, and the great trophy for the ninth time being competed for, seems to have a new lease of its American existence. It is not quite time to sound the trumpet, but it is time to get the golden trumpets ready.

The Vigilant, the great defender of a great nation, went forth in beauty and in power, and far beyond the dim horizon the English boat which gave her birth swept with her towering, shining sails over seas that seemed to lure her to victory. The day was fair and the wind light. Thousands went out to see the race, and they saw it. It was not like the dispiriting fiasco of Thursday, and while it was not such a race as it is hoped to give the British yacht her return, it was still a race enough to get some sort of line on the Valkyrie and enable an intelligent yachtsman to go out to see the rest of the races with some sort of confidence in the result.

That the boats are, on the whole, pretty evenly matched, was apparent. The Valkyrie is fast, but apparently not quite fast enough for the Vigilant. In fact, the English boat, in the race of yesterday, did not do better when she was reaching, nearly close-hauled, on the wind, than she did in running. It has, heretofore, been supposed that the English boat would beat the American off the wind, but theories did not work well in the race yesterday, though the result was all right. If the international yacht race were not contested and managed by gentlemen of the highest character and most ample wealth, the public, which witnessed yesterday's race and Thursday's attempt, at once would say that Thursday's performance was the next best piece of jockeying that was ever witnessed. There was hardly any old basis on which the unsautical public who went "down to the sea in ships" could explain the paradoxical exhibition afforded by the two contests. In every point of the showing of the yachts yesterday was to the puzzled landsman a flat contradiction of that made Thursday. What kind of uncanny craft is it that gains before the wind Thursday and falls behind under the same conditions Saturday, that is left far in the rear while inclining in a light wind Thursday and walks away from her competitor like a witch on that tack on Saturday. Had the America's cup become the creature of a betting ring that can cause the home champion to be "pulled" one day and "let out" the next, and finally, "Where are we at, anyhow?"

These were a few of the conundrums that followed the yacht race yesterday. The last three-quarters of the race, and during all of the trip home, there was exceedingly great joy throughout the universal Yankee nation; but in some instances it was caused by a miscalculation, as Nanki-Poo would say, for the reason that the rejoicer had been induced to put a side bet on the Valkyrie by the supposed exhibition of "public form" given by that deceptive water witch on Thursday, and by the statement of "the man who knows it all" to the effect that "it was Valkyrie weather." But as one "for Export" on the Republic phrased it, "There is nothing more uncertain than a yacht race—except another yacht race."

There was not such an extensive fleet nor as numerous a crowd out to view the first heat of the great race yesterday, as went down to view the exhibition race on Thursday, but there were spectators enough to put the contestants on their mettle, and to furnish one of those gorgeous marine pictures which any international yacht race or an international naval review can afford. Nearly all the big excursion steamers were out, of course. There was the ubiquitous tug, the graceful steam yacht, and even more sailing yachts than ventured out in the calm of Saturday. Some of the latter were under way, but many depended on their own canvas for getting abreast in the world. If there would have been more wind the race would have followed the pattern of the day ever shone on the waters, and a brighter sun never looked down on a more beautiful scene as the stately yachts and the great flotilla which accompanied them rolled over the thirty miles of rolling water which was the course and the place of the combat.

Early in the morning the air was heavy with mist, and the winds seemed uncertain whether to blow or to go to sleep; but by the time the race was started the clouds and mists rolled away and a wind came gently blowing out of the west. The old sail which had tossed and pitched the boats about in Thursday's fiasco was still rolling in from the eastward, but otherwise the seas were smooth.

The start was promptly on time, and both boats were well handled. The Vigilant was the winner by five minutes and forty-eight seconds. At the outer mark the Vigilant was ahead, and she was ahead of the Valkyrie. On the way to the outer mark the boats called free, either running or on a free reach. The wind had heeled so nice at the start that when they got around the outer mark they had a close reach home. They were almost close-hauled all the way back. They both stood pretty high for the lightship, the Vigilant especially working far up to windward. She evidently expected that the wind would still more, in which case she would have had considerable advantage of position. The wind held as it was, however, until the finish, and the Valkyrie made the shortest and most direct course to the lightship, and gained a little on the Vigilant. But it was too little to affect the general result. The Valkyrie did her best sailing on the way home and surprised the American yachtsmen by the way she held her position, not sagging off like the Colonia, but seeming to have a grip on the water to keep her in position.

Both victors triumphed were cheered and saluted at the finish, and it seemed hours after the Vigilant had passed the lightship before the Valkyrie got there. To the people on the Valkyrie it must have seemed a year. The Vigilant beat the Valkyrie by seven minutes and thirty seconds on actual time, and by five minutes and eighteen seconds on corrected time. So was the vessel sailed and won, in sunshine and in seas that should have belonged to summer time. The friendly foes met on a great arena, where often before the destinies of the great yachting trophy have been decided, and fought their battle out before the eyes of thousands, and victory came, sweet little cherub, and perched up aloft on the topmast of the Vigilant.

The next race will be sailed tomorrow. It will be over a triangular course, beginning and ending at the Sunday Island lightship. The course will be thirty miles, ten miles for each side of the triangle and will be so laid out as to give ten miles each of running, reaching and windward work. It is to be hoped that there will be a good breeze that will afford a fair test of the yachts.

YELLOW FEVER IN BRUNSWICK.

A Gloomy Outlook, with the Fever on the Increase.

Brunswick, Ga., Oct. 7.—The weather is variable. The outlook is very gloomy. Cases are piling up, and the yellow fever is rapidly on the increase. From house to house and street to street it jumps, throwing entire families into sick beds, gradually but surely. As each man is stricken another family is added to the relief association's list of sufferers. The scarcity of supplies has compelled the association to feed only women and children. Whenever the man in the family is stricken his family necessarily becomes a all purposes widows and orphans until the man recovers. The government is compelled to feed them or they will starve. The supplies are not here to feed all. On 651 orders 138 rats were issued at the commission yesterday; fifty-one sick persons were supplied with stimulants.

An authority says: "I think the disease of yellow fever is very light, but am inclined to believe from what I've seen within the last forty-eight hours that the epidemic will largely increase and the rate of mortality will be high." Thirty-five new cases of yellow fever and one death were officially reported here to-day. Five persons were discharged. The patient who died was Eugene Burton, St. Simons Island. Recapitulation—Cases under treatment, 131; discharged, 69; died, 10; total, 210. Rate of mortality, 7.5 per cent.

Thirty-One New Cases.

WASHER, Oct. 8.—Surgeon-General Wyman, of the Marine hospital service last night received a telegram from Surgeon Murray, at Brunswick, Ga., announcing thirty-one new cases of yellow fever yesterday, twenty-five of which are colored and six white. There was one death on St. Simons Island.

At Jessup one new case has been reported and one person sent to camp. Surgeon Carter has reported to the surgeon-general from Waycross, Ga., that, in accordance with his instructions, he has perfected the train inspection service and has begun the inspection of the small places in the infected region.

No New Cases at Jessup.

Jessup, Ga., Oct. 7.—No new cases and very little change in the situation since yesterday. The census was completed today which shows the following: Whites—Males, 145; females, 175; total colored, 320.

Dr. Tuten was compelled to take to his bed today on account of overwork. Dr. Lincoln has his hands full attending the sick. There are twenty-nine cases of sickness in town with various complaints. Fifteen among them are white and eleven are colored. Yellow fever patients are doing well.

Arrested for the Big Four Killing at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 8.—J. D. Onks, the special detective of the Big Four, alleged to have fired the shot which killed James Pitts in a riot at Indianapolis, Thursday evening, was arrested yesterday afternoon. He denies having fired a shot from the train.

New York Defeats Boston 10 to 0.

New York, Oct. 8.—The Metropolitan baseball team yesterday won yesterday at the Polo grounds before 3,000 people. New York defeated Boston by a score of 10 to 0.

They made a pretty narrow way when on a boat to a wind of ten miles to the first mark which was off North Long Branch and so close in shore that a good view of the racing yachts was obtained from Manhattan, Monmouth beach and Long Branch. As on Saturday the Valkyrie forged ahead at the start, she was not running quite so close to the wind as the white sloop, but she was going faster. In ten minutes the Valkyrie had by four lengths, but the Vigilant was a trifle behind. The Vigilant increased her lead to ten lengths at the end of the first half hour and then while the Englishman on the steam boat was lagging themselves with the Vigilant knew to cut down
